WAX POP BOTTLES
America's crying need at the present time is a wax "pop" bottle according to a squawk coming from the sport department, reports having just been received by that department of an attack upon the umpires by St. Louis baseball fans yesterday. St. Louis seems to have a habit of trying to make impressions upon the umpires with pop bottles and is going down in the annals of baseball as the home of the "Pop Bottle Brigade."

ELECTION SCANDALS
Just as we were beginning to relax with a sigh of relief after plowing through several thousand words of election scandal from Pennsylvania every night comes a report from Illinois that the slush fund in the primary election there this year, exceeded three million dollars. Charges of graft and ballot box stuffing are also being indulged in by opposing factions. One thing we have to be thankful for is that we don't have to bother about writing the stuff even if we do have to read it.

CAILLAUX
Joseph Caillaux the new minister of Finance in France—at least he was at the time this was written—is giving some of the lesser lights in the French republic a taste of what an iron hand means. After taking over the badly befuddled financial situation of France he cleaned out the desk of his predecessor and then started doing things the way he thought best. M. Berenger who negotiated for the United States-French debt agreement was the first to feel the wrath of the new financial head of the country. M. Berenger tried to aid the new minister with a few suggestions and he was politely—and not too politely—told to sit down in his office and wait until M. Caillaux called upon him for suggestions.

MRS. McPHERSON
Aimee Semple McPherson, woman evangelist of Los Angeles has been lost or kidnapped and is now safely back at Angelus Temple in the south. The incident has furnished a great deal of news copy and a subject for discussion both pro and con as to whether or not Mrs. McPherson really was kidnapped. On the face of matters as they now stand the public must accept the statement of her experience as given by Mrs. McPherson. That Mrs. McPherson has gained a great deal by the publicity given is without question—the mystery of her disappearance and kidnapping will probably never be cleared up to the extent that it will satisfy all.

COL. GREEN DENIES RUM CHARGE ANNEX AGAIN ASKS TO JOIN CITY OF RICHMOND

SECTION OF ANNEX WILL VOTE AGAIN

Group Representing About Two Thirds of District is to File Petitions Soon

Residents in the Richmond Annex desiring annexation of the territory to the city of Richmond last night notified the city council of their intention to circulate and file a petition for this purpose and asking the council to acknowledge receipt of the request.

The proposed district which asks annexation to the city does not include the entire territory of the Annex which was voted upon at the last election and later for annexation to El Cerrito. The new territory includes approximately the northern two-thirds with the majority of the population.

The entire district voted upon annexation to Richmond at an election held December 16. At that time the proposition was voted down and proponents of the annexation measure announced that they would again seek annexation at a later date. In this election the measure was defeated by a vote of 106 to 78.

On May 15, elections for the annexation of the district to El Cerrito were held and the measure was defeated by a vote of 136 to 107.

Proponents of the plan to annex the district to Richmond will begin circulating petitions immediately and as soon as they are completed will present them to the council and ask that body to set the date for the election.

The petition presented to the council last night was signed by fifteen residents of the district. As the district seeking annexation to the city is regarded as more favorable toward the proposition than the residents in the section adjoining the county line, it is thought probable that the election this time will carry. The council placed the request on file.

Son Of Pittsburg Mayor Injured As Torpedo Explodes

PITTSBURG, June 28.—Edward Linsched, 11 year-old son of Mayor Arnold Linsched of Pittsburg was painfully injured this morning when he exploded a railroad torpedo by pounding it with a hatchet. The boy had discovered the torpedo on the Santa Fe railway tracks and taking it home he tried to set it off with the hatchet. The torpedo exploded at the first blow and showered the lad with small particles of metal.

His father, hearing the explosion, rushed into the yard and found the boy lying on the ground writhing with pain and bleeding from numerous wounds.

Physicians, immediately summoned removed numerous parts of metal from the body of the boy. The boy was cut about the face, hands, arms and legs.

Usual Combination Starts Another Fire

Charges Made Against Former Inspector Result in His Resignation; Successor Named

Lee a week ago of poor workmanship on his own jobs and operating without a plumbers bond handed in his resignation stating that the plumbing inspectors position was hurting his business.

The board accepted the resignation and appointed F. S. Biomberg as inspector.

BOND REVOKED
Building Inspector Frank Walsh stated that E. Young who has been doing plumbing work in El Cerrito had been doing the work contrary to the ordinance and recommended that his bond be revoked.

The recommendation of the building inspector was accepted and the bond revoked.

On the recommendation of Fire Chief W. A. Hinds the board of trustees ordered the fire hydrant at Potrero and San Pablo avenues changed to San Pablo avenue opposite Gladys street.

A fire hydrant at Madison street and San Pablo avenue was also ordered installed at once.

Beach Censor May Lose Out Because Of Standard Suit

(By Universal Service)
WASHINGTON, June 28.—The ever-vigilant "beach censor" has been put to rout at last, it appeared today.

For the United States Bureau of Research, in conjunction with manufacturers, is preparing to standardize bathing suits—yes, women's included. All manufacturers have been asked to report the measurements of the suits they make, in order that sizes may be standardized throughout the industry.

The aim is "stabilization of the industry" so the commerce department said.

"But when it's all done," asked the censorship foe, "How can a maid in a vest pocket size one-piece suit be ordered to put on more clothes? If her suit is 'standard' for her architecture, there won't be any other type."

McVittie Renamed As City Manager

The city council last night appointed James A. McVittie city manager of Richmond for the two-year period beginning July 1. The application for reappointment was received by the council last night.

Equalization Board To Start Sessions

The board will meet from time to time until July 19 to equalize tax assessments.

Baker of Harrisburg, who was State Chairman of the Republican Committee. No. 2 is E. E. Reidleman, who ran with Representative William S. Vare against the Yoppey-Fisher ticket, and lost the nomination for Governor. No. 3 shows Albert M. Greenfield, multimillionaire of Philadelphia, who was the alleged "angel" of the Vare-Reidleman campaign. No. 4 is John S. Fisher, Republican nominee for Governor, who was backed by the Mellon interests. No. 5, Mrs. Ella M. George, who supported Governor Panchot, was called for questioning regarding the alleged disappearance of a $250,000 "prohibition war chest."

COUNCIL WILL INSPECT PAVING

This afternoon at 2 o'clock has been set as the time when the city council will inspect the paving in the Pullman district, now in course of repair by the Northern Paving company. Walter Crosby, representative of the company, last night told the members of the council that George Curtis, contractor, will arrive in Richmond today.

This afternoon was set because Curtis is anxious to return to Los Angeles immediately after the conference, because of illness in the family.

The investigation is to be made so that a definite decision as to the repairs to be made prior to the construction of the work.

Protest Received On Plumbing Law

Protests to the amendment to the present plumbing ordinance whereby master plumbers would be required to pay a fee of $100 per annum were received by the city council last night.

Councilman Mrs. Marie Ogborn stated that she had received several protests from repair men in the city claiming that the fee would work a hardship on them and prevent them from carrying on their work.

R. W. Timmons, a plumber, stated that the proposed amendment was not asked to work any hardship on residents but to insure property owners of good work. He stated that non-resident plumbers came to Richmond and did inferior work for which the property owner had no redress later.

The amendment was referred to the ordinance committee and City Plumbing Inspector C. S. Ford for one week.

Miss Eldred B. Case, 648 Fifth street has departed for Southern California to spend a month's vacation.

MILLER FIRST TO ENTER RACE

June 28th was the first day under the law when petitions for nomination for county and township offices could be filed, and a flock of petitions were in evidence everywhere yesterday.

The first candidate to file his petition was John A. Miller for the office of county assessor. His petition was handled by Al Paulsen, and the requisite number of signatures were secured in a short time.

The last day that candidates can file their nominating petitions is July 22nd, and judging from the rumors that are flying about, there are likely to be some surprises, in the shape of "dark horses," who will suddenly appear on the political battlefield.

Existing in Contra Costa county, this year, and with office holders feeling they are on the top of a smoldering volcano, almost anything can happen politically by the 22nd of July.

Gratuitous License Refused Carnival Co.

Upon the statement of City Attorney T. M. Carlson that he could not arrange a contract for a gratuitous license between the Richmond Post of the American Legion and a carnival company under the city ordinance for issuing a gratuitous license the city council ordered that the terms of the ordinance be lived up to.

Under the terms of the city ordinance a carnival company must pay a license fee of $150 per day with $5 per day additional for each side show. The ordinance states that where the net proceeds are to be given to a charitable institution the fee can be omitted.

SOFT DRINK PERMIT

Permission to conduct a soft drink establishment in conjunction with his regular business was last night granted by the city council to William Johnsen of Bay View and San Pablo avenues.

ANDREWS MAPS PLANS FOR BIG BOOTLEG WAR

Additional Agents and New Appropriation Expected to Aid in Big July Drive

(By Universal Service)
WASHINGTON, June 28.—Making a supreme test of its power to enforce prohibition, the federal government will throw the largest dry army in history into a smashing new offensive next month to make the nation really dry.

Eight hundred new beer and alcohol sleuths, rum-smuggling investigators, prohibition agents, and "under-cover men" will be the "shock troops" of this onslaught, it was announced today. They will swell the dry land forces to 4,000 men. Back of this army will be new appropriations of $28,500,000, and probably a reorganized dry enforcement machine.

Regarding New York City as the western area in the country, General Lincoln C. Andrews, chief of the dry forces, will throw into the metropolitan area a hundred additional inspectors to stem the flood of illegal liquor from drug stores. Drastic enforcement to permit regulations which are supposed to restrict sale of whiskey and wine will be the major objective in the New York drive. A city wide (Continued On Page 8)

Big Grass Fire Burns Over Area Of Over 3 Miles

MARTINEZ, June 28.—More than three square miles of hills and grazing lands were burned over and the Ozel refinery and the McKown ranch were threatened by a grass fire near here on Saturday. The fire started early Saturday morning and raged until late in the night.

More than 100 men battled successfully to turn the fire from the Ozel plant early in the afternoon but it was late in the evening before the flames were controlled. The blaze came within thirty feet of the $150,000 plant of the Petroleum Products company and within a hundred feet of the McKown ranch after burning over a grain field.

Employees of the oil plant, Port Costa Water company, Pacific Gas and Electric company, Southern Pacific and twenty prisoners from the county jail battled the blaze.

The cause of the fire is not known.

Another fire started early this morning on the waterfront highway but it was soon extinguished.

Contracts For Band Stand Postponed

The city council last night postponed action on the awarding of bids for the construction of the band stand and rest rooms for Memorial park. The park committee asked for another week to consider the bids. The contracts are expected to be awarded at the next meeting of the council.

RECLASSIFY PROPERTY

An ordinance reclassifying property at 121 Nineteenth street from residential zone No. 1 to commercial zone No. 1 passed its second reading before the city council last night. The reclassification was necessary because of a permit granted to Sulzilio to erect a building for a fruit and vegetable store on the property.

Mr. and Mrs. David Vallergera, 630 Fifth street have returned from a weeks vacation in the bay regions.

WANTS AUTO; DON'T CARE ABOUT WIFE

REDDING, June 28.—Reaching the conclusion that his brother F. E. Clawson, had eloped with his wife last Saturday and had taken the family automobile, Elmer U. Clawson today swore to a complaint charging his brother with grand larceny. He was emphatic in his request that they get the car if possible but to never mind the wife. "Brotherly love is all very well and probably my brother thought he was doing me a favor in eloping with my wife. I sympathize with him but he can't have the car," declared Elmer tonight.

PETITIONS FOR BRIDGE PERMIT ARE CIRCULATED

Petitions addressed to the board of supervisors asking that a second bridge franchise be granted or that the question be placed on the ballot to be voted upon in the November elections are being circulated for the signatures of Contra Costa voters by the Northern California Development company of San Francisco.

Stating that there is business enough for two bridges the Development company, owners of land on both sides of the Carquinez straits are seeking a franchise to construct a bridge which would be 3,000 feet in length. As this bridge would be considerably shorter than the one now under course of construction and could be constructed at a much lower cost, it is believed by the company that the fares would be much lower than those fixed by a franchise granted to any other company.

The Northern California Development company is the same organization which four years ago planned an automobile bridge across the straits. The company has arranged its financing and it is said that there is no stock for sale.

The Development company is composed of Dr. Otto G. Freymuth, Sylvan D. Davis, president of Davis Schonwasser Co., Joseph Eastwood, president American Forge Co., J. B. Reader, president of J. B. Reader Co.; Jesse Newbauer, president Lincoln Realty Co.; H. Martens, president Enterprise Foundry Co.; R. A. Peabody, president California Machinery Co.; Arnold Liebes, president H. Liebes Co.; Henry Dowden, president of Dowden Marine Products Co.; Wm. H. Reid, president McCoy Motor Co.; George Gilman, president Pacific Wassermann Laboratories; M. Waldeck, president Bissinger Co.; D. D. Barry, assistant manager American Railway Express; John C. Jones, Landgrebe, McNevin and Jones; Christiansen Brothers, contractors; Andrew Kaiser, farmer; Charles Jacobs and Lynn V. Blankman, capitalists.

PROHIBITION HEAD BLAMES WET FANATICS

Matter is to be Placed Before Dry Head of Nation According to Col. Green

(By Universal Service)

SAN FRANCISCO, June 28.—A scathing denunciation was hurled today at his critics for having participated in drinking bouts and thus friendly relations with leaders of the liquor smuggling ring by Colonel Ned Green prohibition enforcement officer.

The charges and reports were characterized as having been made by wet fanatics, political enemies and discharged prohibition agents.

Colonel Green revealed today that while the charges and reports were nothing but "frame-ups" on the part of certain people from whom he has refused to take orders he considered them sufficient to warrant him in placing the matter before Lincoln Andrews.

Old Structure Is Ordered Removed

The city council last night ordered the removal of a store owned by M. A. Oliveira of Hayward at 332 Sixth street. City Health Officer Dr. C. R. Blake stated that the building was unfit for habitation and was unsanitary.

The building located on Sixth street between Macdonald and Nevin avenues is said to be one of the first structures erected in the city.

Oscar Linquist of Oakland, will appear before Justice of the Peace John Roth this morning to plead to a charge of reckless driving as the result of an automobile accident in which the car he was driving plunged into a truck driven by E. J. Higgins.

Linquist was arrested by state officer Leber and the complaint was sworn to by Higgins. The accident happened last week on Cutting boulevard just west of the city limits.

According to the arresting officer, Higgins' truck was traveling on Cutting boulevard when the car driven by Linquist, approaching on the wrong side of the street, crashed into him.

NEW FIRE HYDRANT

The city council last night ordered the installation of a fire hydrant at Thirty-eighth street and Garvin avenue. In the petition made by residents in the district it was asked that a hydrant be installed at Thirty-eighth street and Solano avenue, but the fire and water committee recommended that the hydrant be installed at Garvin avenue on the grounds that the location there would be more practical as there would be better conditions there for hooking it to the pipe line.

SELLING WEATHER

Selling weather predictions is one of the latest industries in Washington. The forecasters do not enter the political field, although a profitable market could easily be secured for exact and authentic predictions as to political cloud bursts, cyclones, and killing frosts, but confine themselves entirely to solving aerological problems. There is a great demand for predictions of this sort. Corn, wheat, and oats, people want them. Insurance people use them to estimate the hazards in storms. Bankers scan them for guidance in making loans, especially in agricultural sections.

The difference between the studies of these independent private observers, and the United States Weather Bureau men, is that while the federal weather bureau confines itself to reports on conditions at the time, and forecasts for a day or so ahead, the unofficial experts specialize on long-distance predictions, forecasting the weather months in advance. Quite a bit of rivalry has developed between the official and unofficial weathertasters and predictors, but advance knowledge of weather conditions, which with the majority of people is only a matter of pleasant trivial conversation, has a large money value to the businessmen of the country so there is room for both classes of weather sharks.

Since 1914, 62,000,000 lives have been lost through war, disaster, or famine, according to T. B. Kittredge, assistant director of the league of Red Cross societies. Of this number, 9,000,000 were killed in wars; 6,000,000 in civil strife; 40,000,000 in epidemics; 5,000,000 in famines, and 2,000,000 in earthquakes and similar disasters. At least 140,000,000 were seriously injured in this period.

design. For the background one may use scrim, unbleached muslin, Indian head or linen, selecting the colors so that they will blend with the furnishings and decorations of the room in which they are to be used.

Only the motifs for the laundry bag are supplied by the transfer. It is made of heavy unbleached muslin, though ceru linen may be substituted, if preferred. The drawing and the bias binding correspond with the general color scheme of the room. The Chinese hats are of canary-colored gingham, buttonholed onto the background with brown floss, while the queues, which spell the word "Laundry" are done in black.

The three-piece set for the dining room is simply developed in cross-stitch. The transfer supplies shape and design for a 36-inch luncheon cloth and six 12-inch napkins. In addition there is a chart showing how the colors are to be used in developing the cross-stitch embroidery.

BROKEN HEARTS OF HOLLYWOOD

BY EDWARD CLARK

Copyrighted by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"BROKEN HEARTS OF HOLLYWOOD" with Louise O'Neer is a Warner picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Betsy Terwilliger and Hal Chutney, movie aspirants in Hollywood, meet disheartening experiences. Marshall, reputed to be responsible for many of the "broken hearts of Hollywood," is attentive to Betsy, arousing Hal's jealous anger. Hal is seriously hurt; Betsy vainly fights to support him. Desperate, she offers a proposal to McLean, noted screen villain, but he befriends her, giving her a part in his picture. Virginia Perry, erstwhile star, now a failure, discovers that she is Hal's mother but doesn't reveal it for fear of blighting the girl's career.

Most of the work Betsy had done so far was preliminary and minor. Now, after two weeks of activity, the day was at hand when the first of the "big scenes" was to be shot, a scene in which the burden of the emotional work would fall upon Betsy.

The action—which was laid on the foggy banks of the Thames in London, of a misty night—showed an aristocratic young girl, in a friendless and drunken derelict "sleeping off" on a bench in the rain, discover that the creature is none other than her own long lost mother. Divided the wrecked woman's degraded condition the fine young girl takes her to her bosom. The scene marked the emotional summit of the whole play.

It was a scene well calculated to try the skill of a seasoned and gifted actress; for one so callow as Betsy, only a miracle would give the required profundity. Nevertheless, out of defiance to the director, Betsy resolved to try with utmost patience and enthusiasm to bring Betsy to great heights. He read and reread the scene to her, and drilled and re-drilled his con-

try; he proceeded to show Betsy exactly how he wanted the scene played. Betsy tried to watch him and mimic him and catch the spirit of his pantomime; but with the score of harboiled onlookers, from prop hand to continuity clerk, and with the accumulated consciousness of her responsibility, she made a sorry and weebegone figure standing there.

"Do it—so!" He shook the glass roof with his shriek of "Mother!" and knocked the breath out of Virginia as he clapped her to his paunch.

So Betsy tried again—and her last attempt was worse than her first, as was but natural under the harrising circumstances. The director's patience was at its end; "You're through!" he bellowed to Betsy; and then to McLean and the studio at large, "It's no use. We'll have to get some one else for the part. By cries, I'd have to be a miracle man to make this female clear store Indian emotion!"

Thus were all her air castles sundered in bitter failure! This was the sad story she would have to carry home to Hal; all the world but she, about their ears, and black night and poverty and want engulfing them again. Dizzy and faint, and in utter despair, she started to stumble off the set. But Virginia grabbed her at the same time detaining the irate director's plea. "Let me take her in hand a minute. I think I can make her do what you want. She's just scared to death now," she pleaded.

McLean, crossing over at the moment and looking sharply at Virginia, backed up her plea; and the end the director assented, though with bad grace. "Hurry up," he ordered. "We've lost too much time already, and I think you might as well save yourself the trouble. Virginia, the girl is nice and can do in certain parts, and I'm sorry for her—but she just doesn't know life enough to put over this big scene, that's all."

But Virginia hushed him, and drew the weeping Betsy away to a quiet and unseen corner of the studio, where for ten minutes she worked and talked, and petted her back to her normal frame of mind. "You're just tired out, child, and excited. You can do this, I know, after I tell you a little story."

McLean, who had come to the nook with them, spoke up softly, shaking his head with a queer smile. "Now I know," he said. "Virginia left Betsy quickly and came and stood face to face with McLean. 'What do you know, Walter?' she whispered, pleading, so low that only he could hear.

"Now I know whom she resembles, Virginia." He took hold of Virginia's hands with both of his, impulsively, and drew her to him and kissed her—the friendly mark of respect of artists. "Good old Virginia, you may be a bit shabby on the outside but you've got a heart of gold. Don't worry, your secret is safe with me," he whispered, also so low that only Virginia's ears heard. And Virginia's eyes were shining with divinely inspired light, as she testified, "You're a good sport, Walter. God bless you. Now go, and leave us alone."

He went, thrilled through and through with the stark human tragedy and drama that had been unbarred to him since the night of Betsy's arrival. "The pity is," he muttered to himself, "that if one were to screen such a story as this, no audience would believe it could ever happen in real life. They'd say it was the exaggeration of the movies. That it was screen hokum. Oh, Lord!" And he went his way mourning and marvelling.

Meanwhile, Betsy was giving her attention now to Virginia, as the latter sat in the poor beside her, clasping her hands hungrily and looking up into her face. Betsy felt peculiarly drawn out of herself by those sad yet gloriously triumphant eyes. The little girl who had never remembered her mother, felt now without knowing it the most potent and heavenly of maternal influences.

"The real secret of good acting," dearest Betsy, is the faculty to be able to project yourself into a part as though it is really happening to you in true life. Now just imagine! Virginia paused, gulped a little, and collected herself with an effort—"that I am your real mother. You have just discovered it. You were taken from me when you were but a child, by an unfeeling court and law that couldn't see beneath the surface of things. They called me wild—and said I went around with other men, but before God, Betsy, it isn't so. Before the world, dear, your father was a kind and considerate man. But before us alone—you, my precious baby, and me—he was a selfish brute. He beat me, and denied me not only simple pleasures but the commonest needs of body and soul. Then, through circumstantial proofs that meant nothing, he cast me off, took you away, and told you that I was dead."

FLORIDA MAKES SCREEN DEBUT AT RICHMOND

Florida, with its lulling girls and auction sales, has made its screen debut and been brought to you via the silver screen. It's all in Tom Meighan's latest Paramount picture, "The New Klondike," which opened at the Richmond Theatre, to capacity audiences last night.

The star is seen as Tom Meighan, a baseball pitcher who is bound for Florida and the training camp. On the way, he meets Lila Lee who is going to visit her grandmother, and get rid of some property.

Arrived at camp Tom is surprised to find that Gooey, his manager, has not been discharged. There is only one reason, Gooey is jealous of Tom's superior knowledge of baseball, and because of his being so close to Colonel Dwyer, the team owner.

Dependent, and not knowing what to do, Tom accidentally becomes involved in a real estate deal. Soon he has made more money than he thought existed in the world. He drives up to the ball field and orders the team off by flashing a check which shows him to be the rightful owner.

The men are jealous and intend to do him harm. Tom agrees to do this and soon has them all in the ball field. As a result, the team forgets about him and his money, and thinks in terms of losses and sales. Then Tom is let in on a false deal and just as fast as the money had come in, it now all disappears. He is broke—with only a piece of worthless swamp land on his hands for his pain and effort.

What happens then and how he succeeds in pulling through, go to make up the rest of the picture. Ring Lardner writes the tale which is full of interesting and character traits.

Other features on the same program include "Curse," an Al St. John comedy, "Topics of the Day," and "Aesop's Fables."

YELLOWSTONE TO YOSEMITE HIGHWAY OPEN

Yosemite, June 28.—Thousands of transcontinental motorists bound for the Pacific Northwest over the Old Oregon Trail will first visit California and Yosemite now that the Yellowstone to Yosemite Highway is open for travel.

This is the production made here today by C. E. Lind of Twin Falls, Idaho, president of the Yellowstone to Yosemite Highway Association.

"The new route between the two national parks offers a saving of seven hundred miles for the motorist," said Lind. "Naturally, we expect many west bound car owners to turn to the 'Y-Y' road when they reach the junction point at Twin Falls, Idaho. Figures supplied by the Idaho State Highway Commission show 100 machines entered Twin Falls on the peak day last year and the average number daily May 1 to October 1 was approximately 700. While this is the first year the Yellowstone to Yosemite route has been opened officially, yet I am optimistic concerning the number of motorists that will use the new route between two famous national parks."

Lind explained his first interest in the Yellowstone to Yosemite Highway occurred when a motorist complained of missing Yosemite while westbound, due to the absence of a through road. Such has now been provided. It turns south at Twin Falls and passes through the fertile Snake River Valley to Pocatello, Idaho, Carson City and Mono Lake. Here the visitor may turn to the right for Yosemite or continue straight ahead to Southern California, via the Owens River Valley.

Salt Water Dam

To consider the plan of constructing a huge dam across the upper portions of San Pablo bay or the Quilicura straits, Dr. Elwood Meade, of the federal reclamation bureau, is in California to confer with the California Development Association.

Four plans are being considered, any one of which would create a huge fresh-water bay and make possible a sufficient water supply for bay industries. Sixteen plans for the dam have been presented. None of the four plans being considered has received final approval of the engineers.

The four plans under consideration are:

Dam from Point San Pablo to Marin county, to cost $75,000,000 with railway and highway facilities, and $70,000,000 without such facilities.

Dam at Army Point, near Martinez, to cost $49,800,000 with rail and highway facilities, and $46,300,000 without such facilities.

Dam between Benicia and Port Costa to cost $42,900,000 with rail and highway facilities, and $37,000,000 without such facilities.

Dam at Dillon's Point, to cost $43,500,000 with rail and highway facilities, and $40,000,000 without such facilities.

Slings Pies And Rubber Hammers Not Passe Says Actor

(By Universal Service) CHICAGO, June 28.—The gentle art of hurling pies, big, juicy, buckleyberry pies at the visage of the villain is shunning in the movie lots of California, but that art is not dead, says Tom Meighan.

"This spoke Tom Meighan, here at the cinema, who just set the 'nickelodeon' roaring a few years ago, as he passed through Chicago today on his way from New York to Hollywood.

"It's hard to tell what the public wants in the way of comedies," he said. "We hope we have made the greatest stride in producing comedy. But we still have the pie and the rubber sledge hammer to fall back on when the public gets tired of the subtle humor."

"I'm still in good practice and I may throw a few in my next comedy."

LEWIS STONE AT HEAD OF CAST AT CALIFORNIA

Marion Fairfax, world's only woman screen producer, selected a most admirable cast to usher in her first production, "Old Loves and New," which enjoyed a premier at the California Theatre last night.

The ever-popular Lewis Stone heads the cast of this adaptation of B. M. Hull's celebrated novel, "The Desert Healer." Barbara Bedford, a charming girl and a consummately capable actress, plays opposite him.

Tully Marshall, the "man of a thousand faces," has the small but intensely vicious part. Others in the cast are Walter Pidgeon, Katharine McLaughlin, Arthur Rankin, Ann Turk and Albert Conti.

It is superb entertainment, this "Old Loves and New"—a film replete with forested situations, compelling love affairs, action and suspense, and a setting in the Near East that brings the miracle-like victrola sensation of that far off land before the eye in a glittering panorama of desert and tropical brilliance.

Lewis Stone stands out in new relief in the role of the faith-shattered Englishman who buries himself among the Arabs of Algeria and becomes the "Healer" of his physical and political ills. Stone divests himself of his inveterate southern reserve like a warrior stripping to battle armor and throws himself into his stirring part with a new fire and force.

Miss Fairfax has taken the melodramatic ingredients of the book and compounded them with deft skill into the beautiful love story and knowledge of native character that won this work by popular Mrs. Hull the palm as her finest story.

"Old Loves and New" was directed by Maurice Tourneur.

Other features include "Page Me," a Bobby Vernon comedy; "Topics of the Day"; "Aesop's Fables"; and Larry Canelo at the Organ.

Wild Aggregation At Livermore Is Ready For Rodeo

LIVERMORE, June 28.—If wild horses, wild cowboys and a generous supply of cowgirls make a rodeo, then this Alameda county cow town will have the world's greatest, three-day show beginning next Saturday.

Livermore will be the scene of the greatest gathering of bucking bronchos and men who know how to ride 'em that has ever been witnessed in the history of rodeos in the west. And women familiar with the rope and saddle will be entered in goodly numbers to seek their share of the prize money and to add their quota to the thrills for the crowd.

It was said by M. G. Callahan, rodeo manager and secretary of the association.

Bob Anderson has arrived with his outfit and within the next day or two "Cuff" Barrett and his string of horses and performers will arrive for rehearsals and try-outs. The fact that no other California rodeo is to be held on July 3, 4, and 5 makes it possible for the cream of western talent to sign up for Livermore and means that the show will naturally contain more stars than have ever assembled at Livermore in the past. It was said by the sponsors. Wild horses in large numbers have been rounded up on the slopes of Mt. Hamilton by John McGlinchey of the Stockmen's Association and are in the corral ready to "do their stuff" in a number of sensational ways. Girls and men, comedians and wild horse riders, bull-dozers and trick riders, will all combine to present in Livermore's arena a revival of the sports that made the west famous in the splendid idle Forties. Governor Friend W. Richardson has been invited to come to Livermore and make the address of the day.

R. R. Hastings and family, 1221 Barrett avenue have returned from a two weeks vacation spent in the south.

HUSKY CREW WINS RACE; NAVY SECOND

(By Universal Service)
By DAMON RUNYON

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 28.—Those amazingly strong young men from the Northwest who ride the racing shell of the University of Washington didn't make the same mistake in the big Intercollegiate regatta on the Hudson this year that cost them the race in 1925. That year "Rusty" Callow's men put all they had into a drive as they hit the tall Poughkeepsie bridge a little over a mile from the finish of the four-mile race and they had nothing left to stand off a belated rush by the Navy. They finished second that year.

Today they saved up some of their strength, and when the Navy came on beyond the bridge in another desperate, smashing rush, trying to repeat their maneuver of the last year, they caught the Huskies with just enough left to keep in front by a quarter length. It was so close that some of the 40,000 or more spectators who saw the race from the banks of the river were asking long afterwards, "Say, who won that thing?"

Syracuse was third, Pennsylvania fourth, California fifth, Cornell sixth, Columbia seventh and Wisconsin eighth.

It was the greatest race seen on the Hudson in many years. Four of the men who sat in the Washington shell, Harold Gendron, No. 5; Harold Hart, No. 6; Harrison Sanford, No. 7; and Olvin Ulbricksen, No. 8; are veterans of last year's crew and two of them, Gendron and Ulbricksen, have just been married.

The other men in the victorious shell were Marius, Gierup, No. 1; James Matthews, No. 2; Norman Sonjus, No. 3, and Homer Kerns, No. 4. The coxswain was Arthur Wuthenow.

Four of the men in the navy shell, Elliott, W. C. and D. T. Eddy and Born, are also veterans of last year's race and that race must have been in the minds of the oldest in the two shells as they swept under the bridge and began that mighty duel down the "stretch."

They had a great day of it, one of those rare June days that have been rare indeed, this current June.

A matter of thirty-five to forty thousand people were scattered along the banks of the river, parked on the grassy slopes of the highlands, clinging closely to the slippery rocks of the river bank or jogging along on the observation trains.

There may have been more than thirty five or forty thousand. It is difficult to estimate these assemblages. They strung along over four miles of pleasant scenery many of them hid in the shrubbery and refused to come out to be counted. Some optimistic estimates put the crowd at 75,000 but I am inclined to think this number could have been arrived at by counting each person twice.

Of course there was a pretty big crowd afloat on motorboats, yachts, excursion steamers, rafts, yaws and what not. The old Dewitt Clinton, a river veteran steamed in well laden with spectators. A torpedo boat destroyer with white jacketed sailors peering from the decks was anchored near the finish. An eagle boat

Richmond Keys Win In Oakland

The Richmond Keys chalked another victory on the wall by defeating the Key Association of Oakland by a score of 7 to 1 at Oakland on Sunday morning. Neylon was in the box for the local team while O'Loan was behind the plate.

and a submarine were also riding in the stream. A tall river boat brought a load of convalescents from the United States Veterans' hospital at Castle Point and took up a station near the finish on the west shore, the passengers sitting out on the decks. A couple of sea planes floated around in the river occasionally taking brief buzzes up and down the course.

There were some spectators on the spidery railroad bridge that shakes hands with the east and west shores of the Hudson at Poughkeepsie and is one of the highest bridges in all the world. Young men in Scouts' attire paddling about the water in frail canoes, some bearing young ladies in wide picture hats and clinging in alarm to the sides of the tiny craft. Many of the popular Poughkeepsie rowers, the hills which skirt the east shore of the river, which is the Poughkeepsie shore, from there if they had keen eyesight or field glasses, they could get a view of the race. The wheezy little ferry boats that ply between the east and west shores were lopsided with the loads of passengers who held tickets for the observation train or wanted to see the race from the western bank.

They kicked up the cinders along the right of way of the west shore railroad as they trudged in long lines over the tattered ties, where the train was halted or in seeking comfortable resting places in the hills. All along the cinder path vendors were stationed screaming about souvenirs in the form of pennants, arm bands and dolls or offering pop and peanuts to the populace. It was hot and the gents trudged along with their vests unbuttoned and their hats looked somewhat flustered, that is, the mature ladies did. Giddy young things in sport clothes and no hats bounced along the ties very nimbly, pausing only to cast admiring glances at the sun-burned young gentlemen on the pier of the different boathouses. These boathouses, long pine buildings without pretense, are on the west shore.

Girls in knickerbockers and girls in the flaming colors of the different colleges breezed along the railroad tracks headed for different points of vantage. The finish was, of course, very popular. After all, that's the race.

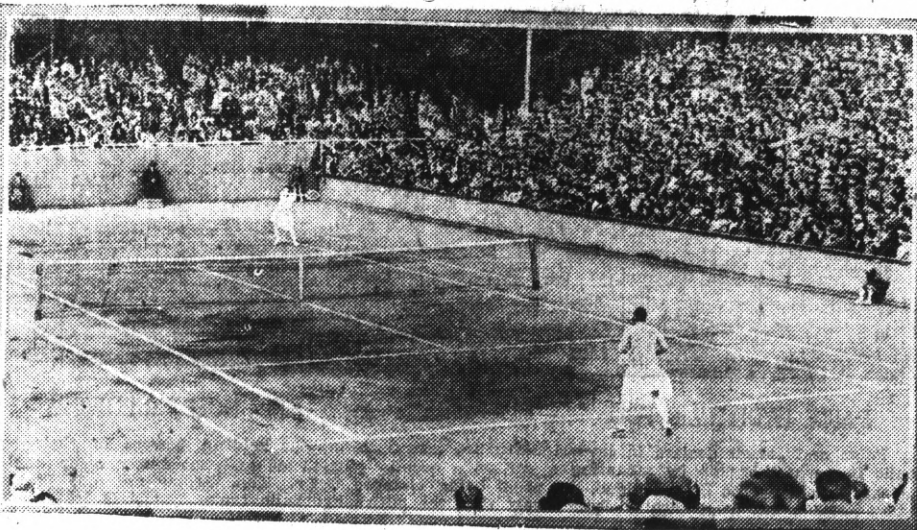

The old grads of the different colleges were busy at the task of old grading, which is ever a rather trying matter. Old grading keeps an old grad right on his toes. Also it keeps him up late at night.

The most industrious old graders here this year were the Columbians of '86. They hired a hotel for a couple of days and went into the old grading business in the right spirit.

The first race of today was the freshman struggle of two miles with shells from Columbia, California, Syracuse, Pennsylvania and Cornell. A freshman heat is always of interest because it gives something of a line on what the boys will have in the boats next year.

The reward to the winner of the race today was a trophy known as the Stewards Cup presented by Francis S. Bangs of Columbia. This trophy is for the winner to

OAKS WIN

For the third Sunday the Oaks took their double header and copped the series four games to three. The Oaks have a habit of losing about the first three games or winning one on the first day, another on Saturday and then coming through to win in both games on Sunday. On Sunday they slaughtered the Portland Beavers 10 to 2 in the morning and 9 to 2 in the afternoon. Buzz Arlett was the hero of the day. A home run in the morning's game and two triples and two doubles in the afternoon game was his gathering. Wonder what they will do against the Seals today at San Francisco.

BOXING

According to an announcement made yesterday, Tiger Flowers, world's middleweight champion, has signed to meet Sailor Eddie Huffman of Los Angeles at Boston on July 17. Flowers is booked to meet Joe Lohman, of Toledo at El Paso on July 11 and Battling McCrory of Boston in Atlanta on July 23.

TENNIS

The Japanese tennis stars defeated the Filipino tennis stars in the Davis cup matches at San Francisco in every game in the series. This places the Filipino team out of the cup matches.

BEARS

The University of California took its ninth victory in Hawaii on Sunday by defeating a Japanese team 4 to 2. Loyd, the California catcher did his duty by knocking a home run in the eighth. The Bruins have won nine games and have lost two in the island series.

BAKE RUTH

Babe Ruth slammed his twenty-fifth home run of the season on Sunday. It was on June 24, 1921 that he hit his twenty-fifth home run of his record breaking series of 59 so mathematically Ruth should not hit more than 59 this year, but then you never can tell.

France Plans To Lead In Airplanes

Major Vuillemin will try for the same record by flying from Paris over Casablanca toward Beyrouth. A third attempt by Captain Grier will be in the direction of India.

ILLNESS KEEPS SUZANNE FROM ENGLISH PLAY

(By Universal Service)

WIMBLEDON, England, June 28.—Mile. Suzanne Lenglen, undisputed world champion woman tennis player, and six times holder of the Wimbledon title, today withdrew her name from the singles division of play in the great English court classic. As the French champion was eliminated from the doubles competition with her partner, Mile. Vlasto last week by the American pair the Misses Ryan and Browne, she now remains entered only in the mixed doubles division, paired with Jean Borotra.

Mile. Lenglen's withdrawal was announced over the telephone by her representative Major Larcombe to officials of the tournament. Mile. Lenglen, Major Larcombe said, was on her way to the courts for her singles match with Miss Claire Beckenham today, but was forced to return to her room by the illness which has made her court appearance so erratic during the last week.

While the large gallery which had gathered for the late round matches, Mile. Lenglen's included, heard the news of the star's withdrawal, from the famous center court where she was to have met her English opponent today the announcement drew a roar of applause which did not speak well for the French girl's popularity.

The American forces, which have been rapidly thinning as the tournament speeds on towards the final rounds, suffered one severe casualty today, and achieved another signal victory.

Miss Elizabeth Ryan, considered as the United States' strongest entry in the women's division, fell before the accurate placements of Mrs. Kitty McKane Godfrey, England's star, in a hotly contested three set match, 1-6, 6-2, 6-0. Howard Kinsey, the California star entered the men's semi-finals when he chopped his way to a victory over P. D. B. Spence, of South Africa, 6-3, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.

Miss Ryan, who rose from a sick bed to meet her English opponent today, clearly showed her weakened condition in her performance. She fairly swept her opponent off the courts with a whirlwind of powerful volleys and drives in the first set, began to weaken in the second, and looked on the verge of collapse during the entire course of the final six games.

The American pair, Vincent Richards and Howard Kinsey, advanced another round in the men's doubles competition when they won an easy match from S. W. Bobb and R. Meyer, 6-4, 6-0, 6-3.

Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup, the star Boston player, paired with George Carole Reese figured in a mixed doubles victory over Mrs. R. W. Jackson and E. Zenla, 6-2, 8-6.

Ironworkers Lose Another

Again the Ironworkers lost another tough game, a game that should have been theirs but ended differently. Antioch proved their downfall on Sunday, defeating the local team by a score of 7 to 6 at the First street diamond. Matthews chucked a fair brand of ball for the local nine but boots did not encourage him. McElroy donned the iron mask.

English Woolens Favored By Paris

(By Universal Service)

PARIS, June 28.—English woolens are the vogue for the chic Parisian man. Suits made of English cloth are the fashion. The price of clothing of ordinary cloth. The Frenchman has just realized that much of the English goods is made in France.

English importers buy large quantities of woolens in Roubaix and Elbeuf. The cloth is exported to England where it must pay customs duty. It is then resold to France and again crosses the channel. In France it is now sold for twice the price of ordinary French merchandise.

English importers have insisted on exclusive designs for their purchases, to prevent the French competition, with the same stripes and patterns at half price.

Man Who Helped Shah Given Job

(By Universal Service)

WARSAW, June 28.—Like an echo from an ancient tale is the appointment of M. Yondentich as court physician to His Majesty Riza Khan, ruler of Persia.

Yondentich was a Russian refugee living in poverty near Warsaw. While at a movie he saw pictures of the coronation of Riza Khan and recognized in the new Persian ruler a half-starved Persian soldier whom he had aided when he was still a prosperous physician in Russia.

Yondentich addressed a letter to Riza Khan through the Persian ambassador at Warsaw asking him to remember and aid an old comrade. The appointment followed, together with a pass and traveling money to Teheran.

Pastures Caused Early Wars Says State Dairymen

"The search for pasture lands was one of the strong forces that drove primitive peoples over mountains, through sands, and across plains, into new and hostile countries there to enter into combat for the possession of the coveted valleys," says Sam H. Greene, secretary of California Dairy Council.

"The first battles were fought because the lives of the people depended upon the lives of their cattle; not because of lust for power. When severe drought withered one pasture another had to be found. Consequently the herdsmen banded together and fought to take possession of neighboring fertile valleys."

"The pastoral people of the Bible were not warlike; they fought to secure an existence. Abraham migrated from Ur of the Chaldees in search of grazing lands, and when famine seized upon the land of Canaan he journeyed into Egypt. Jacob also drove his flocks into Egypt and Moses fought many peoples to secure food for his cattle."

"The inter-dependence of man and cattle dates from the time the first wild creature was captured and subjected to man's rule. Tamed, the cow depended upon man to find her food and man in turn depended upon the cow for food; the first example of reciprocity. This inter-dependence of man and cattle is as vital today to the progress of the human race as it was in earlier times."

"Down through the centuries the cow has been made to serve man's interests. The cow Abraham knew was vastly different from the cow of today. The cow of the 20th century is a man-made creature, shaped to man's purpose through the science of selective mating. Cow-keepers today do not battle for pasture lands; agricultural science has made it unnecessary. And the cow finds her needs supplied by the hand of man, and she reciprocates by supplying him with an abundance of wholesome and healthful food."

The secretary was instructed to write the International Musicians' Union, requesting that the local Musicians again become affiliated with this Council.

Under good and welfare, Martin Hauge, of the Building Trades Council, spoke at length on the different phases of the Labor Movement. Hauge stressed the importance of the individual in the movement. "We should not sit back and let George do it, we owe it to the future generations to build a firm foundation for the Labor Movement." Hauge also reported that the Globe Clothing Store carries practically all Union Label goods. Hauge's remarks were well received by all delegates.

Investigation of drug stores will be made by the inspectors "force to halt diversion of thousands of gallons of medicinal liquor into bootleg channels."

Drives of the same character will be launched in other cities with reinforced squadrons of inspectors.

Announcing the nation-wide cleanup, Andrews said today: "With the men provided in the deficiency bill now before congress, the treasury will be in a position to stamp out industrial alcohol diversion and high-power beer production and to prevent diversion of whiskey from drug stores and other agencies."

"It was contemplated that the Goff bill would enable the additional men to operate more effectively, but an effort will be made to overcome this handicap."

The Goff bill, a drastic measure aimed to put an array of sharp teeth into the dry law, has been permitted to die as congress nears adjournment.

War plans of the reinforced dry army will be put into final form at a nation-wide conference of district prohibition administrators Andrews plans to hold here late in August.

Severe crackdowns in some of the districts, probably including the ousting of some of the less successful administrators, are forecast. Early action on these expected changes is contingent upon enactment of the prohibition reorganization bill.

This is designed to lift the prohibition unit entirely out of the international revenue bureau, which, under the Andrews' regime has played no important part in its control, and to place it directly under a commissioner of prohibition. He, in turn, would be responsible to Andrews, who, as assistant secretary of the treasury, is chief of the prohibition, narcotics and customs enforcement machines. The reorganization bill is expected to pass.

Before the administrators' conference, Andrews expects to marshal the support of the foreign nations for the war on illegal rum. Their part will be to prevent the clearance from their ports of rum-laden vessels bound for this country, and thwart the threatened formation of a new liquor armada, now being organized in England to smash the coast guard blockade.

Andrews will sail for Europe early in July to negotiate with England, France and Germany agreements to this end.

To block shipments across the thousands of miles of land borders, an anti-smuggling agreement has been made with Canada and another is now being worked out with Mexico.

Three distinctive features will mark the work of the new dry army, according to Andrews' plans.

The entire force will be made as mobile as possible, he declared, so that any large group of agents and investigators, instead of being restricted to one district, can be shifted at a moment's notice to a new "danger zone."

Detection and prosecution of small violators will be put squarely up to the states, the federal forces making every effort to concentrate on smashing liquor withdrawal conspiracies and eradicating the "wholesaler."

Added reliance on the "undercover men"—trained and highly paid detectives, unknown to saloonkeepers and bootleggers and skilled in ferreting out projects for wholesale diversion of industrial alcohol or medicinal whiskey—will be the third feature.

Additions to the present force, Andrews announced, will include eight-hundred men for the industrial alcohol squad, and eighty-eight for the beer squad, 235 more border patrolmen, twenty-eight smuggling conspiracy investigators, and several hundred undercover men, inspectors and special agents.

Their employment will be made possible by the $3,000,000 deficiency appropriation bill, which congress is expected to pass before adjournment. This appropriation will be in addition to 10,500,000 to meet general requirements of the prohibition unit, and $15,000,000 for the Coast Guard.

Babe Ruth Kissing Ring of Cardinal O'Donnell, Irish Prelate, Who Has Become a Baseball Fan

Since the arrival of Cardinal O'Donnell of Ireland in this country to attend the Eucharistic Congress in Chicago, he has attended several baseball games. This photograph was taken when he witnessed a game between the Yankees and the White Sox in Chicago. Before the game, Babe Ruth, king of the home run hitters, was presented to the prelate. He is shown kissing Cardinal O'Donnell's ring. The Babe then went out and made two hits, but failed to connect for a homer. One of the balls Ruth hit was presented to the cardinal.

Evangelist Hits Back At Doubters Of Kidnapping

(By Universal Service)

LOS ANGELES, June 28.—While the search for the asserted kidnappers of Aimee Semple McPherson was concentrated today in an effort to trace the clothing she wore when found last Tuesday at Agua Prieta, the noted evangelist gave out a statement from her home adjoining Angelus Temple, in which she hit back at the skeptics who doubt her story of having been kidnapped and held prisoner for ransom.

Mrs. McPherson declared that her whole future depends upon the outcome of the search.

"There must be no letup until the men and the woman who kidnapped me are found, or until my statements have been completely confirmed," she said.

"Until something is found to disprove anything I have said my story must be accepted as the truth, as God knows it."

"Doubters of my story say I could not have walked across the desert as I said I did and appear as I did when I was found."

"What motive could I have had for disappearing? If I ran away with someone, why did I return? My character and reputation in this city should refute such insinuations."

"Why, oh why, should they doubt me. I am willing to go anywhere at any time to face any one who claims to have evidence against the truth of my story."

"Before God, my story—every word of it is true—and there is nothing to disprove it. The search must go on."

The mass of information gathered on the trip to Douglas by Deputy District Attorney Ryan and Herman Cline, chief of Los Angeles police detectives, was submitted to District Attorney Keyes today. Captain Cline declared the police investigation would continue.

Mrs. McPherson is rapidly recovering from her experiences along the international border. She was resting today after her first reappearance in her pulpit at Angelus Temple. Yesterday, she delivered an inspirational sermon dealing with the events of the stirring six weeks following her disappearance from the Ocean Park beach.
